

Yumzies

So many apps,
so little time.

The Problem

People have difficulty capturing and organizing the places they saw on social media.

Today's User Flow

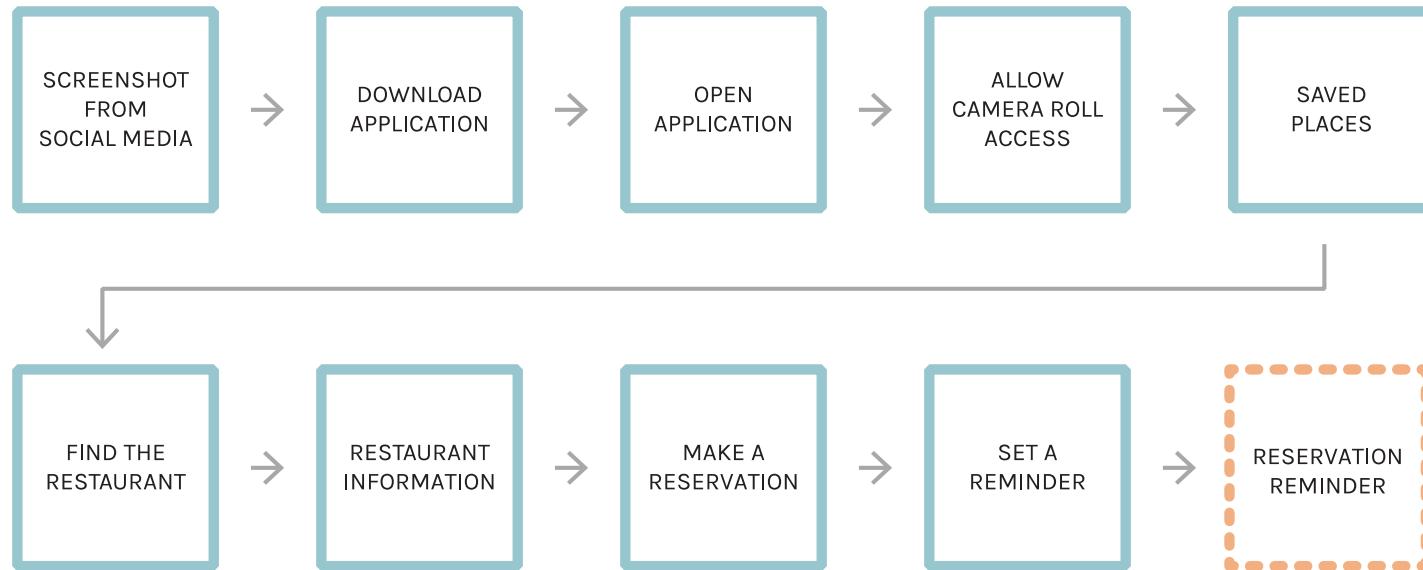

The Solution

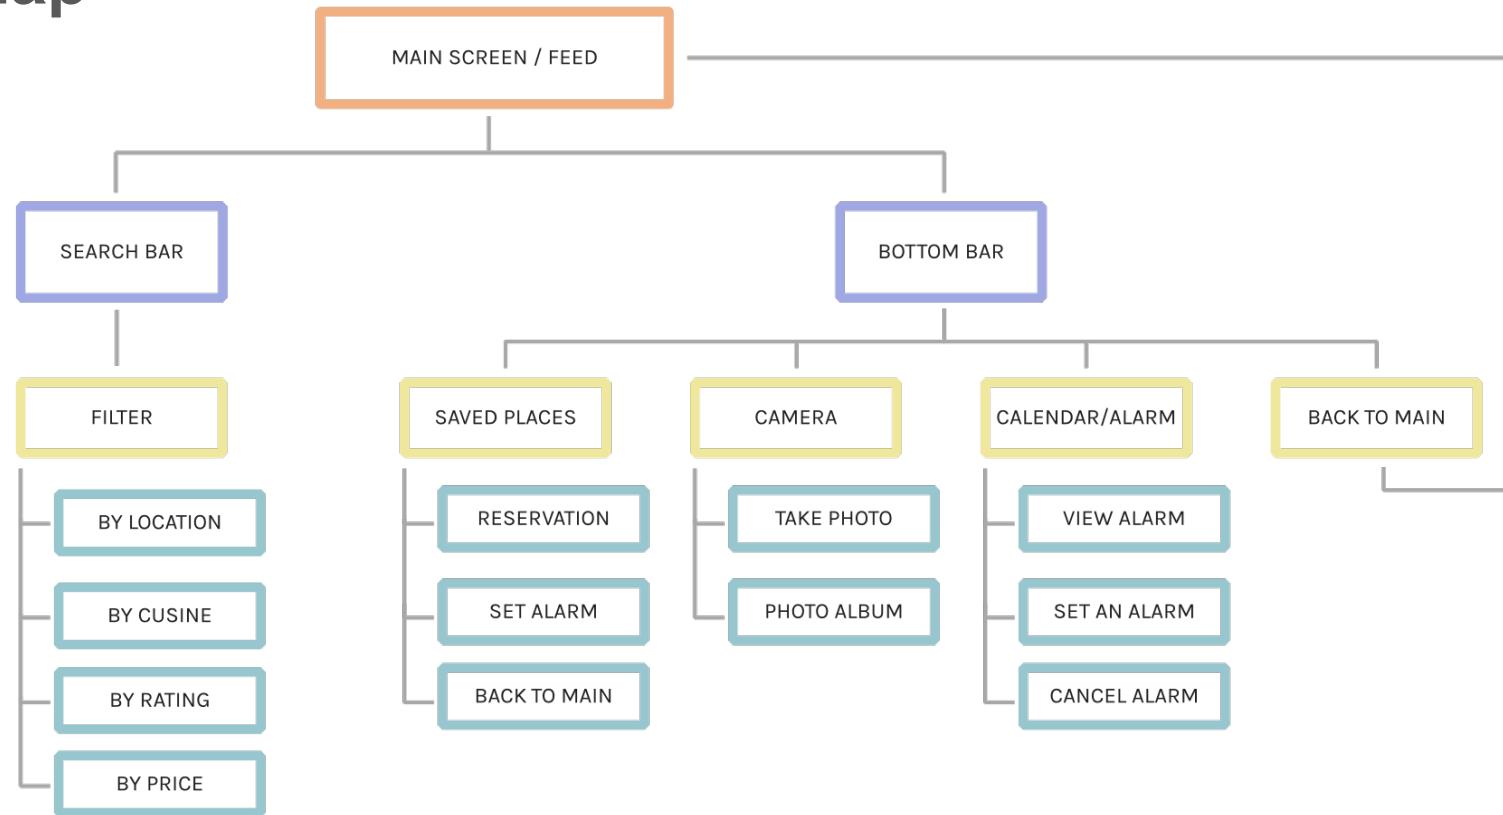

A single place where you can save and organize all of your restaurant information.

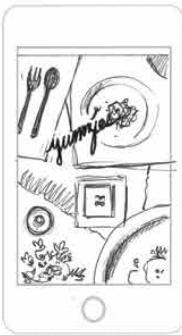

User Flow

Site Map

Wireframes

<Loading Page>

<Screenshot Access>

1. Photo Access set up alert
2. Ok to access the photos

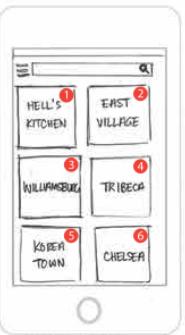

<Main Screen/Feed>

1. Open side bar button
2. Search bar
3. Like/save the restaurants
4. Scroll down

<Side Bar>

1. Open side bar button
2. Saved places button
3. Camera button
4. Calendar button
5. Settings button

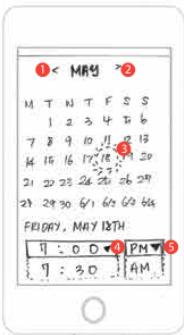

<Saved Restaurants>

1. Hell's Kitchen restaurants
2. East Village restaurants
3. Williamsburg restaurants
4. Tribeca restaurants
5. Korea Town restaurants
6. Chelsea restaurants

<Restaurant Info>

1. Click for map
2. More pictures
3. Make a reservation button

<Making A Reservation>

1. Previous month
2. Next month
3. Reservation time set
4. AM or PM set

<Setting A Notification>

1. Notification time set

<Push Notification>

1. Change reservation
2. Ok

Intro

“Logo is hard to read”

“Overall too washed out”

Feed

“Need more obvious indicator of saved places”

“Looks engaging and modern”

“Would be nice to redirect to the actual website”

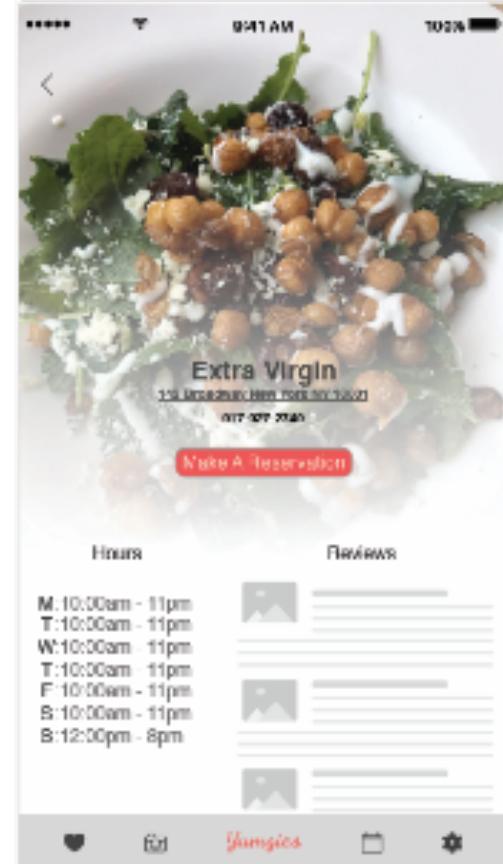

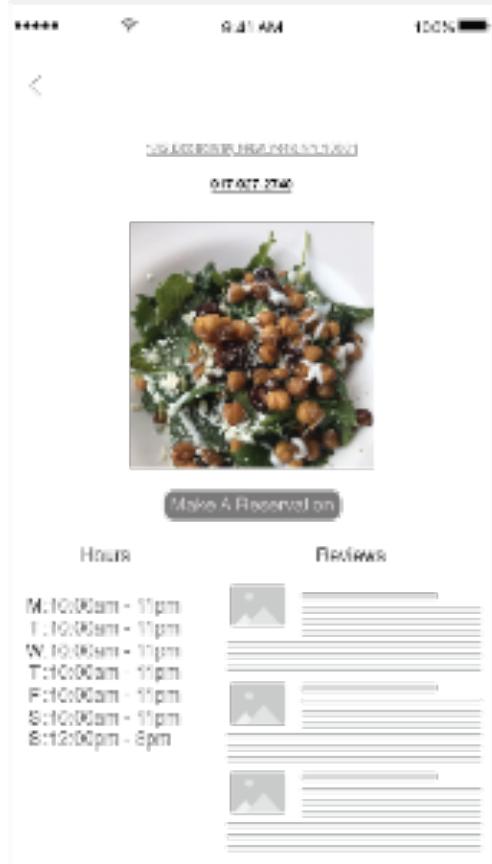

Reservation

“Informative”

“Reservation button is hard to find”

“Looks empty”

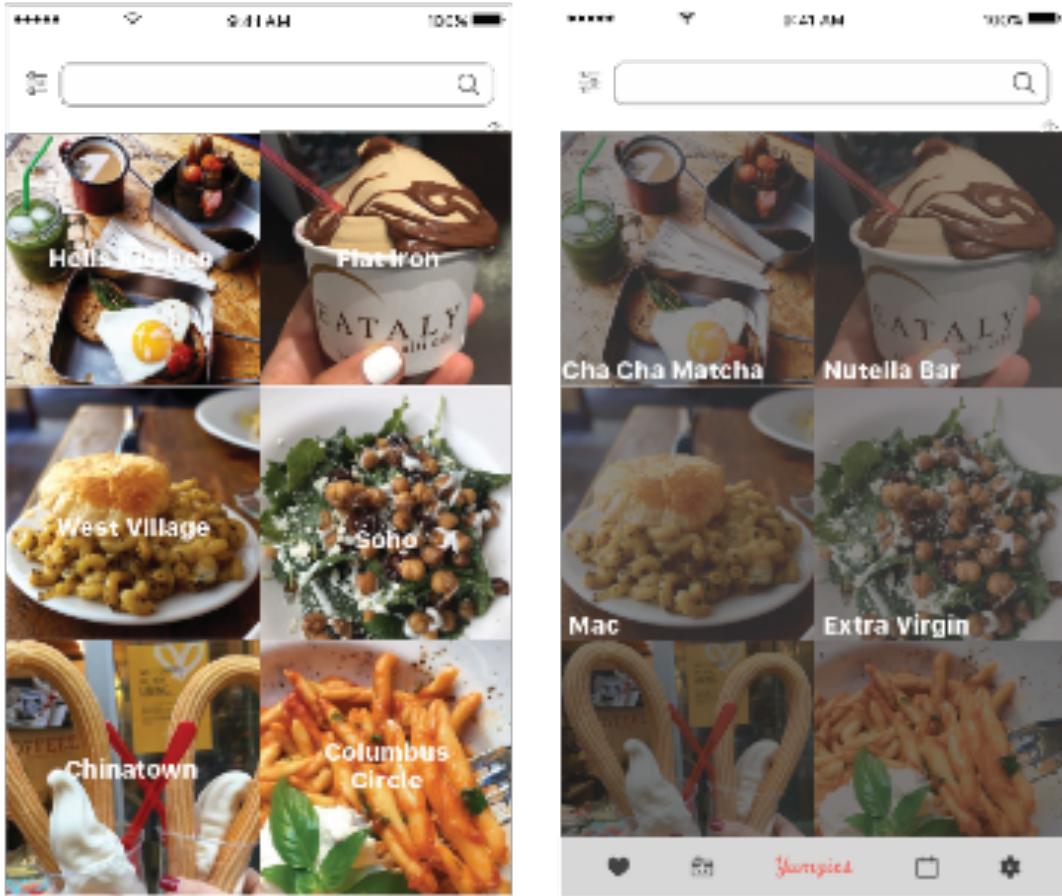

Archive

“Easy to see each picture I recognize”

“Hard to read restaurant names”

“Would like to go back to home to discover new restaurants”

Prototype

